

Two Friends on a Journey to Walpe

Once upon a time, there were two friends who decided to go on a journey to a place called Walpe. As they walked, they chatted about their lives and found out they had a lot in common.

One friend asked, "Where are you going?" The other replied, "I'm going to Walpe." The first one said, "I'm going to Walpe too! Let's go together!"

Then the first friend asked, "Do you have a husband? What's his name?" The other said, "His name is Cham." The first friend smiled and said, "My husband's name is Cham too! We both have husbands named Cham, and we're both going to Walpe. Let's walk together!"

Next, they talked about their children. "Do you have a child? What's his name?" asked the first friend. "His name is Wild," said the second friend. The first friend laughed and said, "My child's name is Wild too! We both have children named Wild, husbands named Cham, and we're both going to Walpe. We're really alike!"

Then they talked about their cradles. "What do you call your cradle?" asked the first friend. "Hippodadle," replied the second. The first friend exclaimed, "My cradle is called Hippodadle too! We both have cradles named Hippodadle, children named Wild, husbands named Cham, and we're both going to Walpe. It's amazing how much we have in common!"

Finally, they talked about their helpers. "Do you have a helper? What's their name?" asked the first friend. "From-thy-work-do-not-budge," replied the second friend. The first friend nodded and said, "My helper's name is From-thy-work-do-not-budge too! We both have helpers named From-thy-work-do-not-budge, cradles named Hippodadle, children named Wild, husbands named Cham, and we're both going to Walpe. What a coincidence!"

So the two friends, delighted with their similarities, continued their journey to Walpe, feeling happy and connected by all the things they had in common.
